World of Opera brings listeners compelling performances from top American and international opera companies. In fact, opera is as popular today as it ever has been. World of Opera is a presentation of National Public Radio. 10:00 pm Classics Without Walls

Our age has transformed music from a substantial act of participation and community into a commodity for consumption. The Anti-Warhorse Zone resists, figuring its listeners want something more than endless third-string baroque sewing-machine music; so it aims for the 99% of the repertoire that goes unrepresented on Top-40 commercial classical radio, and for the kind of expressive performance that the recording-studio aesthetic of bloodless technical perfection has made ever rarer. In addition to weekly broadcasts, Classics Without Walls sponsors small-scale concerts, audiovisual and seminar presentations, informal post-opera and post-symphony meals – whatever helps to bring composer, musician, and listener back into community.
